BEST PRACTICES 2019-2020

1. Academic excellence with rich practical experience :

The law course aspirants are not only from the urban areas but majority of them come from rural areas. After the completion of admission process the students who are poor in English and coming from vernacular medium are focused for giving extra coaching including English speaking, personality development oratory and communication skill etc. The Students are given extra timing to discuss with them their problems regarding non understanding of the curricular aspects. The legal terms and the acts covered in their syllabus are explained to them in very simple language so that they can understand and write their answers in an examination. They are motivated to utilize the library to maximum extent. The updated text books and reference books are made available to them for their studies and moreover they can search the recent case laws from the journals like AIR, Bombay Law Reporter, Maharashtra Law Journal, Supreme Court Cases etc. In Library hours the students are provided to utilize the computers to search for the legal provisions and the recent case laws. The internet facility also helps them to prepare for the various debate, elocution and moot court competitions. The students are not only prepared for their examinations but the overall development is also been taken in to consideration so that they can be perfect for their future career also. The regular visits to District and Sessions Court, Police Station, Forensic Science Lab, Supreme Court and High Court makes them aware about the practical approach in the advocacy profession. They are motivated for research activities especially in writing the journals of practical training paper like professional ethics, contempt of court, drafting and pleading, arbitration and conciliation and moot court. The students search the old and recent cases decided by the Apex and the various High Court for writing their journals. For the internal evaluation the students are given various topics by the respective teachers to write and submit the assignments. The students are also motivated to participate in the competitions organized by the other universities and law colleges. The moot court competitions are very much important for them to understand exact legal provisions and the research towards the old and new decided cases and to understand the judicial approach in recent times. This whole approach is helpful for the students to enrich them in academic excellence with their overall development and to secure their future career.

2. Social Responsibility :

The Mission of Navjeevan Law College is “ To offer to society, makers and upholders of law instilling into them the virtues of integrity, Loyalty and social values”.
